

Bexar County and San Antonio provide a strategic location for distribution, transshipment and international trade processing activities, and have key logistical assets that would support the delivery of products to both domestic and international customers. Depending upon a company's needs and plans, certain incentives may be available which can reduce tariffs and inventory taxes, lower the total cost of goods in transit or inventories in the manufacturing process, or even reduce a company's property tax obligations.

Bexar County has the conditions and capacity to help aerospace companies satisfy the critical technology needs and missions of its specialized customers and we offer a long-term value proposition for future growth. Moreover, our distinguished community offers workers and their families a very high quality of life, recreation and medical care.

Bexar County is home to several successful logistics and distribution companies including, but not limited to:
